Lexmark Return Programme

- Lexmark Return Programme Developer Units are patented devices that are sold at a special price subject to the restriction that the developer unit may be used only once. Following the initial use, the customer agrees to return the developer unit only to Lexmark for remanufacture and/or recycling. The Return Programme developer units are designed to stop working once they reach their respective rated life (as established by Lexmark). In addition, the developer units are designed to automatically update the memory in your printer to protect against the introduction of counterfeit and/or unauthorised third-party cartridges. If the customer does not accept these terms, replacement developer units sold without these terms are available through www.lexmark.com.
